Of Towers and Grape Arbors

For which of you, intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first, and counteth the cost, whether he have sufficient to finish it? Lest haply, after he hath laid the foundation, and is not able to finish it, all that behold it begin to mock him, saying, This man began to build, and was not able to finish it (Luke 14:28-30).

STARTING something you can't finish... over-extending your financial capabilities—some of the things you must guard against as you plan to build a tower. But maybe a tower isn't really what you want to build. Maybe you feel that a grape arbor is more your style, and easier to finance. A grape arbor—shade to protect you from the heat of the sun, delicate fruit to delight the palate, a place of rest and relaxation.

ON the other hand, perhaps a tower is precisely what is needed. A fire tower on some peak in northern timberlands... a beacon tower near treacherous shoals... an antenna tower for broadcasting—sometimes a tower is the only logical structure to build. So you carefully tend your financial resources, practicing economy and wise investment, so that the crucial tower may be completed on schedule, and not suffer the fate of being half-built... then abandoned for lack of funds.

STARTING something we can't finish... over-extending our financial capabilities—some of the things our brotherhood must guard against as we plan a program of outreach to the world of men. But maybe a tower—a program of outreach—isn't really what our church wants to build. Maybe some feel that a grape arbor is more our style, and easier to finance. A grape arbor—a little shade for the local saints, a little fruit to delight our surfeited souls, a place of quiet repose away from the nagging needs of the people in the world.

ON the other hand, perhaps a vigorous program of outreach—a tower—is precisely what is needed. Sensitive Christians moving out into the surging throngs of humanity... obedient to the still-valid Great Commission of "Go ye"... being God's people living in the midst of the communities of men—sometimes a tower is the only logical structure to build. So the church carefully tends her resources, practicing economy and wise stewardship, so that the work of the kingdom of God may be done on earth, and not suffer the fate of being half-started... then abandoned for lack of funds.

MORAL: Grape arbors are nice—but in spiritual warfare, towers are better.

Of Towers and Grape Arbors and Mission Budgets

SITTING down . . . counting the cost . . . seeing if there is sufficient. This aptly describes the present thoughts of the Mission Board on the subject of finances. For several years December has witnessed a frantic series of letters and phone calls to pastors . . . behind-the-scene personal pleas from board men to many individuals in their Conference—all in a last-minute attempt to raise enough money for the missions budget. The fund-raising push takes on a melodramatic air: "will they meet the budget in the nick of time, or will they not?"

SOME brethren are becoming suspicious that the Board is crying "Wolf, wolf" in this perennial eleventh-hour financial plea, feeling that it's just a "scare tactic" to get more money. Others—those who are prodded and cajoled into making December 31 contributions to rescue the Mission Board from financial peril—are frankly tired of the year-end crisis.

THE question is being raised: Has our church over-extended itself in missions—building a "tower" too large for us to support financially? Some say Yes, and cite the hectic year-end budget squeeze. Others insist No, saying that we as a people are not giving sacrificially, and that the needs of the '70's call for expanding our missions programs—not trimming our efforts.

ONE thing is crystal clear. Missions, like the family home, must live within its available means. Perhaps the year-end pressure for finances is a "normal" pattern of giving, and therefore is to be tolerated. Perhaps it is an indication of over-extension, or of a diminishing interest in Missions among the constituency. In any event, the issue is clearly before us. The nature of fourth-quarter giving in 1971 will be one of the factors used by the Board as they meet at the end of the year to determine the "nature and size of the tower" of Brethren In Christ Missions outreach in 1972.
